DESIGN IN BEIRUT

Introduces Bambou

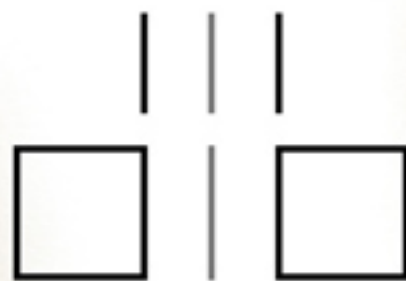

While working on a recent rooftop project at Palma Resort, Lebanese lighting design firm "Design in Beirut" created a brand new lighting fixture that captures the spirit of exotic locales.

"Design in Beirut" worked on comprising an intimate rooftop space that overlooks a beautiful seascape. Due to the endless views surrounding the rooftop, the challenge was to somehow create a sense of intimacy, without losing the unique nature of the site. The answer was developed in-house and resulted in the creation of "Bambou".

"Bambou" is a modern lighting fixture that was inspired by seaweed; the long poles upon which the tubular lights are mounted sway gently in the breeze, creating a sense of perpetual movement while its see-through nature allows for the stunning sea views to remain uninterrupted. At once private, yet open, the seating area on the rooftop is both deeply intimate and bathed in light.

"Design in Beirut" is based in Lebanon and is composed of a multi-disciplinary team of architects, interior designers and engineers who specialize in providing architectural lighting design service to residential and commercial projects in the Middle East and the Gulf. The firm's ethos is to achieve optimal lighting arrangements by blending the functional with the aesthetic and working hand-in-hand with clients until completion. designinbeirut.com
